EINPresswire.com/ -- In an era of hybrid employees, mouse jugglers, and employee surveillance, what has happened to workplace trust? Only 63% of organizations say they trust their employees. Only 53% of employees trust their organizations. Approximately 25% of employees say they don't feel trusted at their workplaces. And what is mistrust doing to productivity and retention?

To explore this topic, SkillPath is offering a free, live webcast on Thursday, November 21 at 1 pm CST. The one-hour interactive virtual program, facilitated by Jesan Sorrells, offers management advice for prioritizing trust at work, and will cover:

- Why trust matters more than ever in today's workplace
- Key factors that influence trust between leaders and employees
- 4 essential behaviors in a high-trust framework
- What to do when you actually don't trust someone on your team
- Plus – repairing broken trust, how to trust a new employee, and more!

This complimentary program is one of several SkillPath offers each year and will be followed with a short Q&A session. Registration is open through the day of the event at: The Manager's Role in Building a Culture of Trust (<https://skillpath.com/land/building-trust>).
