As we approach Remembrance Day on November 11, it's an ideal time to recognize Helmets to Hardhats Canada (H2H) for their exceptional work in supporting Veterans, reservists, senior cadets, military families, and Afghan Nationals connected to Canada. H2H bridges the gap from military service to civilian careers by offering skilled trade and apprenticeship opportunities in the unionized construction industry. This week, the spotlight is on Curtis Houston, a former Canadian Armed Forces Infanteer, who found his rewarding new path as Assistant Director at the Canadian Elevator Industry Educational Program. Curtis's journey underscores how well the trade of Elevator Constructor aligns with the skills and values of the military community. Thank you, H2H, for helping our military heroes continue serving their communities in new, impactful ways.
