

WorkInjuryRights.com Announce Free Consultations for Clients Seeking Insight into The Upcoming January 1, 2025, Senate Bill 362

Boca Raton, FL – WorkInjuryRights.com, a leading law firm in Florida comprising a team of expert work injury lawyers, is happy to announce the launch of its free consultations for clients seeking insight into the upcoming January 1, 2025, Senate Bill 362.

The new bill will increase medical reimbursement rates for Florida workers' compensation cases. Physician services will be reimbursed at 175% of Medicare rates, up from 110%, and surgical procedures will rise to 210%, up from 140%. This is the first major increase in years and aims to improve access to care.

Higher reimbursement rates should encourage more healthcare providers to accept workers' compensation cases, leading to shorter wait times, better access to specialists, and more comprehensive care. These changes will raise system costs by about 5.6%, which could impact employers. Balancing increased costs with improved care access is crucial.

With its free consultations, the experienced attorneys at WorkInjuryRights.com are available to help individuals navigate these changes and help ensure better treatment outcomes and a quicker recovery for injured workers.

"Understanding your rights under this new system is essential," said a spokesperson for WorkInjuryRights.com. "We offer free consultations to explain how these new rates may affect your ongoing or future claims. If you've been injured, better care may now be within reach, and we're here to guide you."

Achieving over $200 million in compensation claims and adopting a client-centric no-win, no-fee approach, Florida's top workers' compensation law firm is committed to ensuring injured workers get the care they deserve.

From the initial consultation to the final resolution, WorkInjuryRights.com adopts a thorough approach to each case that leverages its team's specialist understanding of workers' compensation laws to ensure every detail is meticulously handled and clients have the best chance to receive the maximum amount of compensation possible.
