such as afterschool tutoring for students in grades one through eight. The program, aimed at assisting young students who need academic support and social skill-building, is designed to strengthen their educational foundation and foster personal growth. This initiative responds to a pressing need within the community, offering children an encouraging environment to learn, connect, and build the skills necessary to thrive.

With the gala, Greater Life of Fayetteville hopes to raise both awareness and funds to further expand its tutoring program, ensuring that more children can access the resources they need to succeed academically and socially. The proceeds from this event will directly support the organization's mission to make a positive impact on children's lives and help them overcome the obstacles they face.

"We believe that every child deserves the opportunity to excel, regardless of their circumstances," says the founder of Greater Life of Fayetteville, Georgeanna Pinckney, "Through this gala, we're celebrating the richness of our community's diversity and investing in a future where every child has the tools and support they need to reach their potential."
