deep fulfillment in giving back, whether by coaching students to become certified AI consultants or advising corporate leaders on incorporating AI into their organizations. "It's the success stories and seeing my students thrive that keep me going," says Alicia. "Their achievements are what drives my passion for this work."

The Stevie Awards for Women in Business attracted over 1,500 entries from organizations and individuals across 36 countries, including the United States, Australia, and the United Arab Emirates. Other notable organizations in attendance included Microsoft, Conde Nast, IBM, AT&T, Google, Meta, TripAdvisor, Verizon, and Western Union, making the evening feel like the "Grammys of the business world." The event celebrated achievements and was a prime networking opportunity for attendees, connecting leaders and innovators across multiple industries.

"It's an incredible honor to win a Bronze Stevie Award and be recognized among such inspiring women from around the globe," said Alicia Lyttle. "Sharing AI knowledge and supporting others as they achieve success in this space is deeply rewarding. Our Certified AI Consultant Program and other training initiatives are designed to help individuals make a meaningful impact with AI in their businesses and careers."

A Night of Celebration and Networking

The awards ceremony, which took place at the Marriott Marquis in New York City, brought together hundreds of leaders, innovators, and visionaries and featured a memorable night of celebration, networking, and inspiration. The event provided a platform for global professionals to connect, learn, and recognize the transformative work being done by women worldwide.
