What Is The Definition Of The Hearth Market?

A hearth is a structure typically lined with brick or stone, serving as the floor of a fireplace. It can also include an oven and is used primarily for heating a room and for cooking or heating water. Constructed from non-combustible materials, the hearth protects the surrounding floor from sparks, burning logs, radiant heat, and embers that may escape from the fireplace. It plays a crucial role in enhancing safety and functionality within a fireplace setup.
