

Allied Digestive Health Celebrates Advanced Practice Providers in Honor of NP and PA Week 2024

Brand Recognizes Their Dedication to High-Quality Patient Care and Essential Contributions to Healthcare

WEST LONG BRANCH, NJ, UNITED STATES, November 14, 2024 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Allied Digestive Health, a company of Assured Healthcare Partners® \(AHP®\) and one of the largest gastroenterology groups in the Northeast U.S., is proud to recognize the exceptional contributions of its nurse practitioners (NPs) and physician assistants (PAs) during National Nurse Practitioner Week (November 10-16, 2024) and National Physician Assistant Week (October 6-12, 2024). These observances provide an opportunity to honor the invaluable role these healthcare professionals play in delivering high-quality care, expanding access to treatment, and advancing the field of gastroenterology.

As part of its ongoing commitment to supporting and empowering its advanced practice providers (APPs), Allied Digestive Health introduced a series of new e-learning modules in 2024 aimed at enhancing the clinical skills and knowledge of its NPs and PAs. This initiative reflects the organization's dedication to fostering continuous education and professional development, ensuring that these providers remain at the forefront of gastrointestinal care.

"Nurse practitioners and physician assistants are at the heart of the exceptional patient care that Allied Digestive Health is known for," says Nadeem Baig, Chief Medical Officer of Allied Digestive Health. "Their unwavering commitment to delivering high-quality care and their eagerness to stay on the cutting edge of advancements in gastrointestinal medicine are truly admirable. In launching our Advanced Practice Provider e-learning program, we aim to provide our NPs and PAs with the tools they need to continually expand their expertise and refine their clinical skills.”

The Advanced Practice Provider is a set of three online modules focused on gastrointestinal disease and care. This includes GI Basics, reviewing the fundamental concepts of gastroenterology; GI Disorders, which details the structure and function of the GI tract; and GI Patient Application, an examination of common patient cases and practical application of gastroenterology principles. All three of these learnings will be available to the 75 NPs and PAs at Allied Digestive Health, providing opportunities to enhance their care and treatment plans.

“As Allied Digestive Health continues to expand its offerings and deepen its commitment to patient care, the organization will continue to invest in the education and professional development of its NPs and PAs,” adds Matt Devine, Chief Executive Officer of Allied Digestive Health. “By providing access to specialized training, fostering a culture of learning, and supporting the growth of its advanced practice providers, Allied Digestive Health is ensuring that its patients receive the highest level of care available.”

National Physician Assistant Week, celebrated annually from October 6th through 12th, and National Nurse Practitioner Week, from November 10th through 16th, are both dedicated to acknowledging the tireless work of these healthcare providers and raising awareness of the essential role they play in the healthcare system. Their ability to deliver comprehensive care helps improve patient access to services, reduce wait times, and enhance the overall quality of healthcare delivery.
