Lightspeed Alert helps schools safeguard students by detecting early warning signs of suicide, self-harm, bullying, and violence on school-owned devices and learning platforms. By providing timely alerts, it empowers educators and safeguarding staff to take proactive measures, creating a more supportive environment and identifying risks to students before they escalate. This recognition highlights the critical role of Lightspeed Alert in promoting a culture of care within educational institutions.

The GESS Education Awards aim to enhance the quality of educational services and products, serving as a symbol of excellence. Colin McCabe, International General Manager for Lightspeed Systems, expressed gratitude for the recognition, stating, “We are honoured to receive this acknowledgment from the team at GESS, further validating the power of our technology to support students. Our mission is to cultivate safe and equitable educational experiences, and this award reaffirms our commitment to protecting students and empowering safety staff to intervene before incidents arise.”

The GESS Dubai Awards, now in their 11th year, recognise outstanding contributions in the education sector, celebrating the diversity and quality of educational products and services. Part of the GESS Dubai Education Exhibition and Conference, the awards help promote high standards and inspire industry stakeholders to prioritise student safety and wellbeing.

The awards ceremony took place at a gala dinner during the GESS Dubai conference, which has been a key event in the Middle East education sector for 16 years, showcasing innovative solutions for modern classrooms. The conference provides valuable opportunities for professional development, networking, and celebrating excellence in education, reinforcing the importance of collaboration and shared learning in the evolving educational landscape.
