

Creative Society Volunteers Launch a New Online Series Event: 'What The Climate? Exploring Problems & Solutions'

Volunteers from the Creative Society Michigan Volunteers have launched a new online event series aimed at making critical climate information accessible.

DETROIT, MI, UNITED STATES,
November 20, 2024 /

EINPresswire.com/ -- Volunteers from the Creative Society Michigan Coordination Center have launched a new online event series aimed at making critical climate information accessible to everyone. Titled "What The Climate? Exploring Problems & Solutions," the series seeks to equip attendees with knowledge about the challenges and solutions surrounding the climate crisis.

What The Climate? Free Online Public Event:
Exploring Problems & Solutions

With the escalation of climate disasters, bringing information about their causes and solutions online and making it accessible to the general public is our number one priority.”

Olga Schmidt, President of Creative Society

This initiative is part of the broader efforts of the Creative Society and the ALLATRA International Public Movement, which conduct life-saving climate research and advocate for sustainable solutions to global challenges.

As humanity faces escalating climate threats, these efforts emphasize the urgency of collective action. By addressing the increasing struggle for survival caused by climate change, the Creative Society strives to create a secure and sustainable future for all.

The Creative Society aligns its initiatives with the democratic goals of the United Nations by conducting interdisciplinary research and fostering global collaboration. Creative Society's projects unite people worldwide to respond to the climate crisis. For more information on Creative Society activities, visit the “Our Actions” page at

Driving Public Awareness
Creative Society volunteers implement several impactful projects, including:

- Global disaster monitoring
- > Data visualization and analytics
- > Integration of scientific findings
- > Direct interaction with climate witnesses and refugees
- > Public education on climate risks and preparation

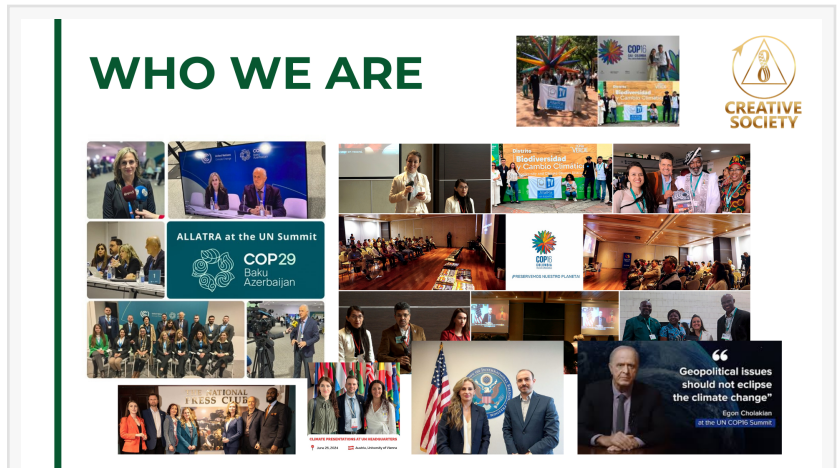

These efforts empower individuals to take informed action, such as preparing for natural disasters or understanding how to act during emergencies. For example, during floods, focusing on safety rather than belongings can save lives.

Past and Upcoming Events
Following the success of events on October 30, 2024, and November 13, 2024, the bi-weekly series will continue with the next session:

The Creative Society invites the public to an engaging online event designed to demystify the climate crisis and provide actionable insights for addressing its impacts. As climate-related disasters become increasingly common, understanding their causes and future implications is vital.

Topics Covered:

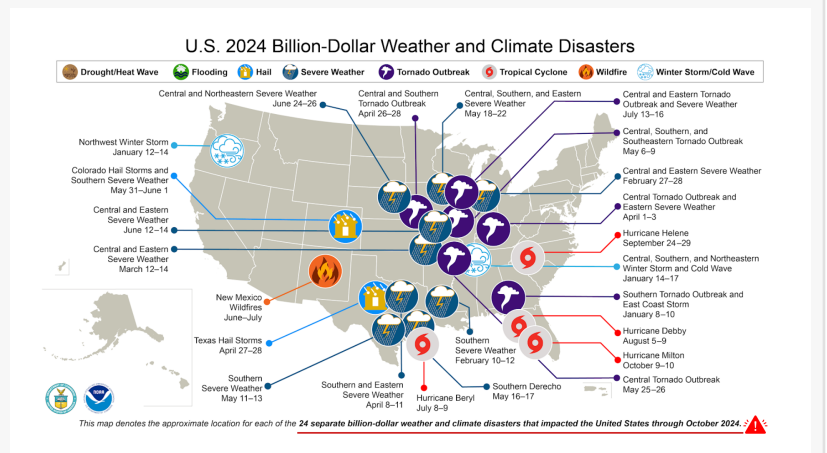

- > Why are some regions experiencing extreme floods while others endure severe droughts?
- > What does the impending water crisis mean for humanity?
- > Why are climate disasters intensifying, and what challenges lie ahead?
