A Wedding Dress in 2025 isn't just a dress, it's a canvas of love, resilience, individuality merging elegance from the past and the future that will tell a modern unique story.”

Designer Guillermo Pharis

Pharis, a graduate of the Fashion Institute of Technology in NYC, has always had a passion for fashion and design specially for romantic gowns. After working for several well-known fashion houses, he decided to branch out on his own and focus on bridal wear back in 2019. His collections has garnered attention from all around the world, with brides walking aisle in Hong Kong, NYC, Connecticut, Pennsylvania, Denver and Los Angeles.

“I am looking forward to collaborating with local vendors from all around the globe, I believe local businesses bring more value to the economy, and meeting new clients who share my passion for beautiful and timeless dresses." says Pharis. "My goal is to make every bride feel confident, beautiful, and unique in their wedding dress." The designer opened showrooms in NYC, Denver and Los Angeles.

Pharis' collections will be available in select bridal boutiques across the country starting in 2025. Brides can expect to see a range of styles, from classic ball gowns to sleek and modern sheath dresses. With his talent and eye for design, it's no surprise that Guillermo is quickly becoming a name to watch in the bridal industry.
