The company's training programs are continuously updated to reflect the latest industry trends and client demands. AltaClaro's platform is designed to be scalable and adaptable, serving law firms of all sizes as well as corporate legal departments, with solutions tailored to meet specific organizational needs and learning objectives.

"The legal industry is undergoing rapid transformation due to technological advancements and changing client expectations. The way to implement new technology is through education and training. By providing accessible, high-quality training and objective evaluations, we help level the playing field and allow all lawyers to develop critical skills," said Abdi Shayesteh, AltaClaro CEO. "We're grateful for the 'Legal Education Innovation of the Year' award from LegalTech Breakthrough. We'll continue to combine technology with proven educational methodologies to empower lawyers to gain practical skills and adapt to the rapidly evolving legal landscape."

The mission of the annual LegalTech Breakthrough Awards program is to conduct the industry's most comprehensive analysis and evaluation of the top technology companies, solutions and products in the legal technology industry today. This year's program attracted thousands of nominations from over 12 different countries throughout the world.

"AltaClaro allows for more efficient, targeted skill development compared to traditional training methods. While law schools excel at teaching legal theory, they fall short of hands-on practical training. Law firms struggle to provide a baseline of development and training for associates because of factors like deal flow, associates spread across different office locations, and more,"

said Bryan Vaughn, Managing Director, LegalTech Breakthrough. "AltaClaro addresses critical gaps in traditional legal education and professional development with solutions that reduce the cost and effort of training, improve associate efficiency and utilization, increase associate retention, and ensure lawyers both understand legal concepts and can apply them effectively in practice."
