

A Day in Our Shoes Launches Enhanced and Expanded IEP Goal Bank

Now available: largest, free IEP Goal Bank at adayinourshoes.com—newly expanded, organized by subject, and designed to empower parents and teachers with ease.

AVONDALE, PA, UNITED STATES, November 20, 2024 / EINPresswire.com/ -- A Day in Our Shoes, the trusted resource for special education advocacy and support, is thrilled to announce the launch of its redesigned and significantly expanded IEP Goal Bank, now live on the website. This invaluable tool, already a favorite among both parents and teachers, offers the largest and most comprehensive collection of free IEP goals available anywhere online.

A graphic for the IEP Goal Bank. It features a background of school supplies like pencils, paper clips, and notebooks. On the right, the text "1000s of Measurable" is in green, followed by "IEP Goal Bank" in a large, green, cursive font. Below this is the "A Day in Our Shoes" logo, which includes a pair of shoes and the text "A DAY IN Our Shoes". At the bottom, a caption reads: "The IEP Goal Bank is one of the best Special Education resources online."

New Features for Easier Navigation and More Specific Guidance

The updated goal bank is now meticulously organized by domains and subject areas, making it simpler than ever for users to pinpoint the specific goals they need. Whether you're crafting academic, IEP transition goals, social skills IEP goals, or functional goals, the revamped interface ensures you find exactly what you're looking for in just a few clicks.

The IEP goal bank at ADayInOurShoes.com now includes a goal bank within a goal bank. There is a separate IEP goal bank for those transitioning to adulthood.

"The most widely requested goal ideas were IEP goals for behavior," says Special Education Advocate Lisa Lightner. "The second most popular request was to break down the IEP goals for reading into specific skills like decoding and fluency."

Why This Matters Now

Parents navigating the Individualized Education Program (IEP) process often face the frustration of knowing their child needs support but not having the language or framework to advocate effectively. Teachers, too, face challenges in developing measurable, meaningful, and individualized goals that align with student needs.

The enhanced goal bank addresses these issues head-on, with clear, easy-to-use examples that bridge the gap between knowing a need exists and knowing how to meet it.

A Free, Online Resource for All Ages and Stages

Covering preschool to high school—and even transition goals for adulthood—the goal bank is designed to meet the needs of a diverse community. With a deep understanding of the complexities of special education, the A Day in Our Shoes team has tailored this tool to the challenges faced by families and educators today.

Praise for the IEP Goal Bank

The IEP goal bank has always been about empowering parents and educators. This update isn't just a facelift—it's about creating resources that save time and lead to better IEP outcomes for kids.”

IEP Alone*

Already, parents and teachers are hailing the changes:

“It's a lifesaver. The examples in this IEP goal bank are easy to adapt. That saves me hours of frustration.”

“Finally, a tool that feels like it was made for parents, not just professionals. I now come to the IEP table with ideas and can participate better as a parent.”

Join the Movement

A Day in Our Shoes is more than a resource—it's a community. The revamped IEP Goal Bank is just one of the many ways the organization is making the IEP process less daunting and more productive. Visitors to the site will also find free webinars, guides, and tools to help them navigate the IEP journey with confidence.
