HAMILTON, ON, CANADA, November 20, 2024 /EINPresswire.com/ -- "Together with Power WearHouse Inc., we're paving the way for a more inclusive future where everyone can shine. Every child deserves the chance to live their best life, recognizing that this looks different for each unique situation, we aim to inspire and support families, friends, and newly diagnosed individuals to never give up.

“

With Power WearHouse Inc., we believe empowerment is the way to an inclusive future. Every child deserves a chance to thrive. Inspiring families, and others to embrace their journey and never give up.”

Tyrone Greenidge

Dear Grandpa, It's Michael is more than a film—it's a mission-driven project showcasing the talents and stories of individuals on the autism spectrum, with 40% of the cast and crew on the spectrum. This ensures authentic storytelling and fosters a truly inclusive environment.

"We are thrilled to partner with Power WearHouse Inc.," said Tyrone Greenidge, Producer of Dear Grandpa, It's Michael.

"Their dedication to empowerment and inclusion aligns perfectly with our mission to make a meaningful impact in the autism community and beyond." Reaching new audiences together, we're not just creating a film—we're building a movement that uplifts unheard voices and demonstrates the power of true inclusion."

About Dear Grandpa, It's Michael

Dear Grandpa, It's Michael is an autism-focused film project that tells a heartfelt story with a purpose. By involving cast and crew members with autism, the film seeks to create opportunities for individuals on the spectrum to showcase their talents and become an integral part of the film industry. With this project, we hope to elevate the visibility of autism in media and promote understanding, compassion, and inclusion.
