EINPresswire.com/ -- Jennifer Toth's "Dark to Light: Struggle of a Manic-Depressive" begins with a series of poems and prose that depict the darkness and isolation that come with the illness. Manic-depression, or bipolar disorder, is a mental health condition where people experience intense mood swings, from the highs of mania to the lows of deep depression.

Dark to Light: Struggle of a Manic-Depressive

As Toth navigates through her despair, she discovers that she is not alone. By connecting with others who share her struggles, she finds a path to hope and healing. The narrative follows her journey as she begins to rise from the depths of her suffering, gradually embracing the light and finding new meaning in her life. Toth learns to focus on the surrounding beauty, using it as a tool to combat the darkness that leads her to a place of peace and gratitude to God.

"Dark to Light: Struggle of a Manic-Depressive" is a moving exploration of mental illness and the human spirit's capacity for resilience and transformation. Toth's honest portrayal of her experiences offers readers a glimpse into the challenges of living with manic-depression.

Jennifer Toth is an American poet who began writing poetry at the age of sixteen. She studied at Rutgers University, where she honed her craft, drawing inspiration from literary icons like Emily Dickinson, Robert Frost, and Robert Hunter. Her book, "Dark to Light: Struggle of a Manic-Depressive", is available on Amazon, Barnes & Noble, and other leading digital bookstores.
