One cannot ignore the rising demand for furniture, which is set to play a pivotal role in the expansion of the furniture logistics market. The global inclination towards home decoration and renovation trends, combined with various human activities necessitating such movable items like tables and chairs, has led to a surge in furniture demand. Supporting the rise in furniture production, furniture logistics services have become integral, offering efficient transportation, storage, and supply chain management solutions. The UK-based interior design company, Hollywood Mirror, shared a report in February 2023 stating that furniture manufacturing generated about $3.22 billion in 2020. On top of that, UK manufacturers sold 5.58 million pieces of wooden bedroom furnishings in 2021. These figures indicate that furniture demand is fueling the growth of the furniture logistics market.
