OFFICIALLY SETS NEW WORLD RECORD
IN TRICK WATER SKIING

Neilly Ross, a dual Canadian-American athlete and one of the most accomplished water skiers of her generation, has officially set a new world record in the Trick discipline.

The International Waterski & Wakeboard Federation (IWWF) confirmed Ross's groundbreaking 11,380-point performance, achieved at the Okechee 3-Event on October 26, 2024.

Ross's record-breaking streak may not end there—she has two additional pending world records, including an incredible 11,430-point performance in Trick.

This latest accolade adds to Ross's illustrious career, which includes:

“

Achieving a world record has been a lifelong dream, and having it officially recognized is a moment I'll cherish forever.”

Neilly Ross

World Trick Champion
Two-time Masters Trick Champion
Under 21 World Trick Champion and Record Holder
Two-time Moomba Masters Trick Champion
Pan Am Games Silver Medalist in Tricks and Slalom
2nd Place in Slalom at the Masters

Reflecting on her record confirmation, Ross stated:

"Achieving a world record has been a lifelong dream, and having it officially recognized is a moment I'll cherish forever. I've poured every ounce of effort into this, and it fuels my determination to reach even greater heights in 2025."

A Global Icon Elevating the Sport

At just 23 years old, Ross has solidified her legacy as a global ambassador for water skiing. Her achievements have inspired athletes worldwide while elevating the visibility of the sport on an international stage.

Beyond her dominance on the water, Ross is a leading voice in the community, leveraging her dual Canadian-American heritage to connect with fans across North America. With nearly 400,000 social media followers, she shares her journey, passion for the sport, and adventurous lifestyle with a global audience.
