

Discovering Vienna by Christina Ullman Wins Bronze in A' Publishing Industry Awards

Captivating Historical Coffee Table Book Recognized for Excellence in Print and Published Media Design

COMO, CO, ITALY, November 25, 2024 /EINPresswire.com/ -- The A' Design Award, a highly respected recognition in the field of print design, has announced "Discovering Vienna" by Christina Ullman as the Bronze winner in the Print and Published Media Design category. This prestigious award celebrates the book's outstanding design, which showcases a visual history of the two primary families who settled in and founded the City of Vienna, West Virginia, in the late 1700s.

"Discovering Vienna" is a testament to the power of print media in preserving and sharing historical narratives. The book's unique approach to documenting the ancestry and early lives of the city's founders, Dr. John Briscoe IV and Dr. Joseph Spencer, Jr., provides valuable insights for historians, genealogists, and those interested in the rich heritage of the region. By combining historical documents, maps, and other artifacts with a visually engaging design, Ullman has created a resource that is both informative and aesthetically pleasing.

Inspired by vintage typography from the late 1800s and decorative elements from historical books and maps of the early 1700s, "Discovering Vienna" stands out for its thoughtful design choices. The minimal use of body text allows the visuals and accompanying captions to take center stage, immersing readers in the historical context of the families' actions against the backdrop of events in the American colonies and Europe. Ullman's extensive research, which involved locating and validating materials from archives around the world, adds depth and authenticity to this pioneering work.

Discovering Vienna

The Bronze A' Design Award for "Discovering Vienna" recognizes the book's potential to inspire further exploration and documentation of local histories. By setting a high standard for the integration of design and historical content, this work may influence the approach taken by future publications in the field. For Ullman and her studio, this recognition serves as motivation to continue pushing the boundaries of visual communication and storytelling.
