Giving Tuesday is a time to unite in generosity and impact, and we're honored to stand alongside SOAA in their mission to serve those who have given so much to our country.”

Bill Thompson

leading AI-driven hunting app, is proud to announce its participation in Giving Tuesday by partnering with the Special Operations Association of America (SOAA). On Tuesday, December 3, Spartan Forge will donate a percentage of the proceeds of all application purchases to SOAA, an organization dedicated to advocating for and supporting the Special Operations community.

“As a veteran-founded company, Spartan Forge is deeply committed to supporting the Special Operations community, and this campaign is our way of giving back to the heroes who have safeguarded our freedom.” said Bill Thompson, US Army Veteran and CEO of Spartan Forge.

SOAA tirelessly advocates for the policy and political interests of the Special Operations community. The organization is committed to protecting American interests, both domestically and internationally. Through its efforts, SOAA enhances national security and enriches democracy by elevating the voice of the Special Operations community and presenting the Ground Truth to the highest levels of government.

Donations raised during this campaign will help SOAA provide critical support, including advocacy for veteran healthcare, mental health services, and initiatives that advance the policies and political interests of America's most distinguished Warfighters.
