On 28 and 29 of November, the WOW-ME partners meet in Barcelona for LTTA Meeting 2

Capacity Building Focus:

Through the WOW-ME initiative, we are empowering ourselves, women and all humans to dream, to learn, and to lead. By all of us investing in the power of each individual, we invest in our future."

Chris Haberl, CEO - EA Consulting

- Enhanced Digital Literacy: By focusing on digital skills in LTTA Meeting 1, WOW-ME has developed training methods to help women navigate the digital age and leverage technology to advance their careers.
- Improved Job Readiness: During LTTA Meeting 2, the partners will be introduced to the narrative technique and employer personas and how these can be applied to helping women approach new job opportunities. The partners will use this knowledge to inspire women in later training sessions in their countries to understand and highlight their strengths when applying for new positions.
- Boosted Confidence and Self-Esteem: LTTA Meeting 3 will help the partners gain the skills they need to assist women with personalized career guidance and supportive communities. By addressing individual challenges and fostering resilience, the partners will be ready to help women develop a renewed sense of self-worth and assurance in their professional journeys.

- Women-Focused Best Practices and Strategic Training: LTTA Meeting 4 will emphasize HR strategies tailored to women, particularly those balancing professional aspirations with personal responsibilities. The partners will learn how to train their target group in digital media and design thinking skills.

Key Impact Highlights:

- Increased Employability: WOW-ME's training programs are geared to equip women with in-demand skills, enabling them to secure better job opportunities and improve their earning potential.
- Boosted Confidence and Self-Esteem: WOW-ME will empower women to overcome obstacles and believe in their abilities through personalized career guidance and supportive communities.
