A closer look at driving forces for the contrast therapy units market reveals an interesting pattern. The increasing prevalence of genetic disorders is expected to fuel the growth of the cord blood banking services market, thereby indirectly supporting the contrast therapy units market. Genetic disorders, caused by abnormalities in an individual's DNA sequence, are on the rise due to enhanced detection technologies and rising maternal age, which heightens the risk of genetic anomalies.

Moreover, advancements in the market offer great promise. Key players in the market are focusing on developing cutting-edge solutions like contrast therapy tubs. This specialised equipment, used for contrast therapy, alternates between hot and cold water immersions to promote healing, reduce inflammation, and improve circulation. As an example, Wind River Spas, a US-based luxury spa, launched the Contrast8 Contrast Therapy Tub in September 2024, a milestone in hot and cold therapy.
