Products, a global leader in natural wound care for animals, is transforming the veterinary landscape with its innovative products formulated with Sea salt from the Red Sea. By harnessing the regenerative power of minerals, enzymes, and sea kelp, Vet Aid provides safe, effective, and eco-friendly solutions for managing a wide range of animal skin and wound conditions. These products offer veterinarians and pet parents a natural alternative to chemical based treatments, ensuring superior care for pets, livestock, and exotic animals.

Vet Aid products are safe, effective, and free from harmful chemicals, making them an ideal choice for animals of all sizes.”

Eddie Kolos, CEO

Since its founding in 2009, Vet Aid has been dedicated to providing all-natural wound care products that promote healing and prevent infection. The Vet Aid Wound Care Spray and Foam are designed for a variety of skin issues, including burns, abrasions, post-surgical wounds, and hot spots. What sets these products apart is their unique formulation, which blends unrefined Red Sea salt with natural antibacterial enzymes and immune boosting sea kelp. The mineral rich sea salt from the Red Sea is packed with essential nutrients such as calcium, potassium, and iodine, which aid in wound healing and skin regeneration. Lysozyme, a natural enzyme, combats over 650 types of bacteria, fungi, and viruses, while sea kelp provides amino acids, vitamins, and minerals that strengthen the immune system and accelerate recovery.

“Our mission is to provide the best possible care for animals using the healing properties of nature,” said Eddie Kolos, CEO of Vet Aid. “Sea salt from the Red Sea is one of the most mineral rich natural elements on the planet, and when combined with other organic ingredients, it creates a powerful formula for healing. Vet Aid products are safe, effective, and free from harmful chemicals, making them an ideal choice for animals of all sizes.”

Vet Aid Wound Care Spray is a hypoallergenic, pH-balanced solution that delivers immediate relief to wounds without stinging. Safe for use on sensitive areas, including eyes and ears, it offers a gentle yet powerful way to cleanse and debride wounds. The Wound Care Foam acts as a natural liquid bandage, creating a protective barrier that supports the growth of strong, flexible tissue at the wound site. Both products are fragrance-free, environmentally friendly, and completely safe if licked or ingested.

“Our products redefine what animal wound care can be,” Eddie Kolos continued. “We’re providing a solution that not only works effectively but also aligns with the growing demand for natural, sustainable, and cruelty-free practices in veterinary care. With Vet Aid, animals heal faster and more comfortably, without the risks associated with antibiotics or harsh chemicals.”

All Vet Aid products are manufactured and packaged exclusively in the United States using the highest quality standards. They meet rigorous FDA, cGMP, and EU compliance requirements and are distributed globally across the United States, Canada, Mexico, Singapore, Australia, and Europe. Packaged in state-of-the-art containers to maintain sterility, Vet Aid ensures that every product reaches veterinarians and pet parents in perfect condition.
