What are the key drivers propelling the global Electrical Conduit Market?

The acceleration in demand for electricity or power generation is widely expected to drive the electrical conduit market. This increased demand is chiefly propelled by the swift pace of industrialization and urbanization, which necessitates the implementation of the electrical conduit. As per the latest 2021 report from the International Energy Agency IEA, a rise of 5% in electricity demand is forecasted. Simultaneously, Canada's Upstream Oil & Natural Gas Industry asserts that by 2040, electricity generation is slated for an escalation of 49%, alluding to a global population surge of about two billion over the next two decades. Therefore, the mounting demand for electric power generation is expected to fuel the growth of the electrical conduit market.
