What is the Principal Growth Driver of the Face Shield Market?

The leading growth driver of the face shield market is the increased awareness due to the outbreak of the COVID-19 pandemic and various government initiatives to mitigate the spread. As per the World Health Organization WHO, COVID-19 primarily spreads through droplets of saliva when an infected person coughs or sneezes. The rise in cases and stringent lockdown measures imposed by governments worldwide have heightened this awareness. For instance, in several European nations, customs duties and VAT on protective equipment, testing kits, and medical devices have been waived off until the end of April 2021.
