-- Global CMX Highlights Energy Investment Opportunities in Australia as UAE-Australia Free Trade Agreement Nears Finalisation

[Dubai, UAE -December 2, 2024]:

Global CMX, a leading energy advisory firm specializing in renewable energy and green fuel development has identified transformative investment opportunities in Australia's energy sector as the UAE-Australia Comprehensive Economic Partnership Agreement (CEPA) approaches finalisation. The agreement is poised to unlock unprecedented collaboration between the two nations, fostering a robust exchange of expertise, technology, and capital in the pursuit of sustainable energy solutions.

The CEPA is set to eliminate trade barriers, streamline regulations, and create a favourable environment for bilateral investments. With Australia's abundant renewable energy resources and the UAE's commitment to diversifying its energy portfolio and advancing global climate action, the agreement represents a significant step toward achieving shared sustainability goals.

"We sees the CEPA as a game-changer for the energy landscape," said Trevor Ducharme, President of Global CMX. "Australia is already at the forefront of green hydrogen, long duration storage and renewable energy development, while the UAE brings unparalleled expertise in scaling clean energy technologies. Together, they can drive meaningful progress in transitioning to a low-carbon economy."

Australia's renewable energy projects, including large-scale solar farms, offshore wind developments, and green hydrogen hubs, are increasingly drawing international attention. The agreement will facilitate UAE investments into these high-potential ventures, offering
