

Hygiena expands with Nexcor acquisition

Hygiena® Acquires Nexcor Food Safety Technologies Inc. to Strengthen Food Safety and Sanitation Data Analytics Solutions Worldwide

CAMARILLO, CA, UNITED STATES, December 3, 2024 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Hygiena®, a global leader in food safety and environmental diagnostics, today announced that it has completed the acquisition of Nexcor Food Safety Technologies, Inc., the creator of KLEANZ and CAMS-PM, two industry-leading software solutions for managing sanitation and equipment maintenance in food and beverage manufacturing facilities. This strategic acquisition underscores Hygiena's continued commitment to delivering comprehensive, innovative food safety solutions to its worldwide customer base.

Steven Nason, CEO of Hygiena

"Effective cleaning and monitoring of facilities with food safety diagnostic testing are essential for quality control and risk mitigation across all food processing environments. With our acquisition of Nexcor software solutions, we plan to integrate our SureTrend® analytics platform with KLEANZ's sanitation software, delivering powerful tools to drive quality improvement, prevent food safety issues and enhance operational efficiencies," said Steven Nason, CEO of Hygiena. "Hygiena's extensive global customer base and commercial channels will introduce KLEANZ and CAMS-PM software solutions, along with our integrated SaaS food safety offerings, to a wider audience. This expanded portfolio provides our customers with a streamlined, prevention-focused approach to sanitation and food safety management. With a centralized platform offering comprehensive, real-time solutions, we are empowering businesses to enhance their food safety programs and operational effectiveness worldwide."

Robert Burgh, President of Nexcor Food Safety Technologies, Inc., commented, "This collaboration with Hygiena allows Nexcor to create greater customer value by streamlining two critical, interconnected functions within food companies worldwide. Together, we accelerate market growth while staying true to our values of innovation, integrity and customer satisfaction. We are excited to merge our expertise, creating enhanced SaaS platforms and comprehensive solutions for sanitation, safety and compliance management. United, we are poised to lead the future of food safety with a shared vision and strong commitment.”

David Grant, General Manager of Software and Instrument Firmware at Hygiena, added, “We are excited to integrate Nexcor’s solutions into our existing suite of software offerings and extend the capabilities of SureTrend. SureTrend currently enables our customers to efficiently plan, schedule, test, capture, store, protect, analyze, audit and report on their critical testing data. Integrating Nexcor’s data will allow us to leverage sophisticated machine learning AI for predictive insights, enhancing risk mitigation and advancing food safety.”

The acquisition exemplifies the shared commitment and aligned values of Hygiena and Nexcor, aiming to enhance the safety and operational efficiency of food and beverage facilities through innovative technologies and comprehensive solutions. Nexcor's dedicated customer base and strong market presence in the food, beverage and packaging sectors will significantly contribute to the partnership's success, fostering global expansion, enhanced product offerings, operational efficiencies and cross-selling opportunities.
