What Are the Major Drivers of the Balloon Introducer System Market?

The surge in cardiovascular diseases is largely expected to fuel the growth of the balloon introducer system market. Cardiovascular diseases including heart attacks, strokes, hypertension, among others, usually affect the heart and blood vessels. The global rise in obesity and diabetes, coupled with sedentary lifestyles and poor dietary habits, have contributed to the increasing prevalence of these diseases. The balloon introducer system aids in minimally invasive procedures to open blocked blood vessels, in turn improving blood flow in cardiovascular disease treatment. For instance, as high blood pressure is projected to increase from 51.2% to 61.0% by June 2024, the number of people diagnosed with cardiovascular diseases are anticipated to rise from 128 million in 2020 to over 184 million by 2050, according to data published by the American Heart Association. These rising figures of cardiovascular diseases will drive the growth of the balloon introducer system market.
