-- By advancing the development and manufacturing of medical countermeasures (MCMs), HELM

Innovations enhances the U.S. government's rapid response capabilities, providing essential protection for the nation's warfighters and the general public.

HELM Innovations has assembled a team of top experts dedicated to ensuring the Department of Defense (DoD) meets its mission to quickly produce safe and effective medical countermeasures.

The company's comprehensive support includes regulatory assistance, advanced manufacturing optimization, scientific data analysis, and candidate testing and evaluation. Additionally, HELM supports MCM program acquisition milestones, technical reviews, and the optimization of the government's manufacturing processes and resources. These efforts aim to accelerate the production of new drugs, devices, and biologics, thereby enhancing the health and well-being of the U.S. warfighting team.

"At HELM Innovations, we are committed to advancing medical innovation and ensuring our warfighters have access to the most effective countermeasures against CBRN threats," said Steve Hoffman, CEO of HELM Innovations. "Our collaboration with the CBRN Defense Enterprise underscores our dedication to national defense and the safety of those who serve."
