

March For The Movement Launches Comprehensive Resource Guide for LGBTQ Advocacy and Support

March For The Movement launches an LGBTQ Advocacy Resource Guide, connecting communities to vital support, advocacy, and actionable steps for equality.

DECATUR, IL, UNITED STATES,
December 11, 2024 /
EINPresswire.com/ -- March For The Movement, a leading AAPI, Queer-

Owned, Women-Owned business dedicated to raising social awareness, proudly announces the launch of its comprehensive resource guide, "The Election May Be Over, But Our Fight Is Not: Resources for Advocacy and Support." This guide offers valuable tools for individuals seeking support and ways to advocate for women's rights, LGBTQ+ equality, abortion access, and gender-affirming care.

We know that many people are feeling uncertain about the future of their rights. This resource is our way of standing alongside those who need support, showing that we are all in this fight together.”

Lisa Webb

As the nation navigates uncertain times, this guide aims to empower communities by connecting them with essential organizations and resources at both the national and local levels. Readers will find actionable information on how to access legal and financial support for gender-affirming care, second-parent adoptions, and estate planning for LGBTQ+ families. The resource list also includes links to state-by-state organizations focused on advancing progressive causes.

"We know that many people are feeling uncertain about the future of their rights," said Lisa Webb of March For The Movement. "This resource guide is our way of standing alongside those who need support and showing that we are all in this fight together. It's about providing hope and the tools to take action."

The resource guide is available now on March For The Movement's blog, The Femme Lens. The
