The Thanksgiving Sleepover event, a resounding success, saw 66 dogs placed in temporary homes, ensuring these animals didn't spend the holiday alone. "The shelter estimated 75 dogs would be taken for the sleepover, so to have such a remarkable turnout was truly heartwarming," said Greg Mitchell of Agee, Clymer, Mitchell & Portman.

The law firm's involvement with Franklin County Dog Shelter stems from a deep connection to the shelter's mission.

The sleepover had a transformative impact on the dogs, particularly those who are shy or timid. According to the shelter, these dogs showed remarkable improvement in their social behavior and confidence after spending time in a home environment, underscoring the program's importance.

Agee, Clymer, Mitchell & Portman encourages the community to continue the spirit of giving beyond the holiday season. "While adoption is always the goal, there are many other ways to
