presentations that transport participants to the Vegas of yesteryear while offering unique insights into its architectural transformation – from a small railroad town to a growing, modern city.

“We are proud to celebrate the 10th anniversary of Home + History Las Vegas, a milestone that reflects our community's growing appreciation for preserving and honoring Las Vegas' history,” said Dr. Paige Figanbaum, Executive Director of NPF. “This event is central to our mission of preserving, educating and advocating for the protection and appreciation of Nevada's historic sites. Through engaging tours, events, and storytelling, Home + History Las Vegas not only commemorates our past but also inspires future generations to preserve our state's rich heritage."

Some of the festival's most revered historic neighborhoods include the Scotch 80s, born from a deal between Las Vegas's first mayor and a Scottish investor, featuring stunning architectural styles from sprawling modern ranch homes to Colonial-Revival mansions. The Historic John S. Park neighborhood takes center stage in the Stroll through the Decades Walking Tour which highlights the rich community history of Las Vegas and showcases popular residential architectural styles from the 1920s through the 1970s.

The Underground Celebrity Icons of Las Vegas Bus Tour includes a star-studded mid-century modern neighborhood designed by Palmer and Krisel and concludes with a guided tour of an underground mansion featured in movies, TV shows, and music videos. In addition, special guest Alan Hess, renowned architect, architectural historian, and author specializing in the mid-century modern movement, will be returning for the first time since participating in the inaugural Home + History Las Vegas festival to highlight Las Vegas' architectural transformation.

Tickets are on sale now and start at $35, with additional events to be announced soon. To purchase tickets and to learn more, visit nevadapreservation.org.
