The team's dedication to blending innovative technology with circular economy principles resonates deeply with my own vision for the future of renewable energy solutions.”

Vincent Marbé

Marbé previously served as CEO of go-e, where he successfully combined technology, innovation, and growth to establish the company as a significant player in the renewable energy space. His expertise in energy technologies and strategic leadership will be instrumental as Modual seeks to expand its market presence and advance its mission to revolutionize energy storage through second-life battery solutions.

Christoph Fässler, Co-Founder of Modual, commented, "It is with great pleasure that we announce that Mr. Vincent Marbé will take over the position of CEO of Modual AG. With his extensive experience, Vincent Marbé will accompany the company into the next phase of its growth and further strengthen our position as a leading provider of sustainable energy storage solutions."

Marbé's appointment comes as Modual continues to gain momentum in the energy storage industry, leveraging its innovative second-life battery technology to meet growing demand for environmentally responsible energy solutions.
