Long Steel Market Technological Advancements Increasing Research Drive Growth to USD 731 Bn by 2030

NEW CASTLE, DE, UNITED STATES, December 13, 2024 /EINPresswire.com/ -- According to a new report published by AMR Says Growth of the construction sector in the residential and commercial sectors has led to a favorable market for long steel goods in order to fulfil the need for housing from a fast-increasing population. Furthermore, new construction industry trends such as Lean Construction, Building Information Modeling (BIM), and Green Buildings have expanded the importance of prefabrication and modularization in construction, driving the demand for the long steel market or long steel goods market higher. The global long steel market size was valued at $476,213 million in 2020, and is projected to reach $731,934 million by 2030, registering a CAGR of 4.1% from 2021 to 2030.

Increase in number of industrial infrastructure projects in developing countries, rise in residential construction activities across the globe, and recovery in the non-residential construction industry drive the growth of the global long steel market. On the other hand, fluctuations in price of raw materials restrain the growth to some extent. However, surge in focus on public-private partnerships in emerging countries and high growth potential in emerging economies have been beneficial for the market growth.

Industry Impacting Factors:

□ In recent years, the steel industry as well as its linked mining and metallurgical industries have experienced significant investments and advances.

According to the data published by the Department for Promotion of Industry and Internal Trade (DPIIT), Indian metallurgical industries garnered US$ 14.24 billion in Foreign Direct Investment (FDI) from April 2000 to September 2020.

□ The building and infrastructure industries are the primary drivers of long steel products. The worldwide construction market is dominated by China, the U.S., and India.

□ In South and Southeast Asia, urbanization is likewise on the increase. These and other growing economies will necessitate significant infrastructure and construction investment over the next decade, creating possibilities for mining and metal companies.
