

Flashmouth Studios Releases “Drunk Christmas Story”

For The Debut Of Its Short Musical Stories Podcast

SEATTLE, WA, UNITED STATES,
December 16, 2024 /

EINPresswire.com/ -- Flashmouth Studios introduces Short Musical Stories, a new podcast series now playing on all major platforms. What’s the difference between a short musical story and a regular song? Short musicals start out as regular songs, but they have a rich backstory that’s too big for a traditional song format. Narration, dialogue, and sound effects are used to transform an ordinary song into a musical story that’s 5-10 minutes long.

Flashmouth’s first short musical is “Drunk Christmas Story.” This comedy was written by Nick Sears and inspired by a song about a Nashville singer who suffers from a broken heart on Christmas Eve. Song cowriter Michael Colby described the need for alternative holiday music, “Artists have been writing beautiful Christmas music for centuries and we have an abundance of happy songs. What do you listen to if you’re feeling stressed, anxious or heartbroken? We thought the world needed a Christmas song for folks who are feeling a little sad or lonely.”
