baseball icons together, cementing its status as a once-in-a-lifetime acquisition for collectors and fans. The magazine is accompanied by a Certificate of Authenticity (COA) and DNA Certification, verifying its legitimacy and ensuring its value for generations to come.

A Historic Treasure with an Incredible Legacy

The 1904 Tip Top Weekly Magazine offers collectors a tangible connection to the golden age of baseball. Published at the dawn of the 20th century, this weekly magazine provided thrilling narratives and illustrations celebrating the burgeoning sport. The addition of these autographs elevates this item from a historical publication to a priceless artifact that bridges the past and present of America's pastime.

The magazine captures the essence of an era when baseball legends shaped the game's culture and laid the foundation for its future. Names like Ruth, Cobb, and Gehrig evoke memories of heroism on the field, while Walter Johnson and Honus Wagner symbolize the technical excellence and sportsmanship that defined the sport.
