What's fueling the growth of the aluminum doors and windows market?

An increased number of construction projects are driving the market growth. As the number of construction projects surges, construction companies are turning to aluminum doors and windows, which offer strength, longevity, and cost-effectiveness.

In addition, initiatives like the Housing for All by 2022, aimed at promoting affordable housing in India, are also bolstering the construction activity and projects in the market. Under this initiative, developers and builders are provided with access to less expensive funding in the form of debt, reducing the overall cost of homes and making them more attractive to first-time buyers. This, in turn, drives more construction activity, promoting the growth of the aluminum doors and windows market.
