alt.ai announces AlphaPath, a sourcing agent tool leveraging clone matching technology—Creating an AI agent for VC/CVC that enables sourcing that transcends regional and language barriers

AlphaPath outputs optimal matching results based on startup clones created from a database of startup companies, a variety of web sources, and social media, along with clones that have learned VC/CVC 'thinking.'

alt has a proven track record of developing successful clone matching technology, including being the first company in Japan to provide AI clone technology in the recruitment and M&A brokerage fields. PoCs (proofs of concept) and implementations utilizing this technology are already underway in those fields, and a PoC for AlphaPath is currently being tested in VCs and CVCs.

With AlphaPath, we will support Japanese VC/CVCs in sourcing more efficiently and effectively, and contribute to accelerating a growth in quality in the startup ecosystem.
