earned income from €100,000 to €200,000 annually. This tax policy allows individuals with multimillion-euro incomes to enjoy substantial savings, making Italy a desirable destination for the ultra-wealthy. By purchasing property in Italy, eligible individuals can extend these benefits for up to 10 years, further enhancing the country's appeal.

The impact has been profound, with 128,000 millionaires globally changing their tax residence in 2023. Italy ranked sixth globally and first in Europe, attracting 2,200 ultra-wealthy individuals, with many settling in Milan, Florence, and Rome. Milan, in particular, has experienced a surge in luxury real estate investments, becoming the capital of Italy's new tax haven status.
