The survey is an on-site inspection conducted by the Department of Human Services based on state compliance guidelines. It examines resident quality of care and quality of life, dietary services, fire safety, and environmental services. The examination includes interviews with residents, residents' family members, and employees.

I'm incredibly proud of our team for earning a deficiency-free state survey. My team's passion for quality care and service is inspiring, and this outstanding survey result reflects that.”

Maddie Almodovar, Executive Director, Avamere at Sandy

Avamere at Sandy's Executive Director Maddie Almodovar shared that the state evaluators were impressed by their team's resident-centered care, interactions between employees and residents, commitment to belonging, and strong systems in place.

“I'm incredibly proud of our team for earning a deficiency-free state survey,” Almodovar stated. “A deficiency-free survey takes the hard work and dedication of every department. It's a testament to our teamwork and the old adage that it takes a village. My team's passion for quality care and service is inspiring, and this outstanding survey result reflects that.”

Since assuming her role as Executive Director in fall 2023, Almodovar has been a champion of diversity, equity, inclusion, and belonging (DEIB). She recognizes many holiday and cultural observances with her team and residents, offering multiple ways to celebrate and learn.

Almodovar is an Inclusion Advocate with Avamere at Sandy's management organization, Areté Living, leading key initiatives company-wide to promote inclusion and belonging across all Areté Living's senior communities.
