EINPresswire.com/ -- Guardian Recovery, a leading provider of behavioral health treatment for adults and adolescents, is proud to announce its partnership with Stephen Hill, founder of Speak Sobriety and a nationally recognized speaker on addiction prevention and recovery. Hill will join Guardian Recovery as the new Director of Community Outreach, bringing his expertise and passion to further the organization's mission.

[Stephen's] sincerity and dedication to helping students and families deeply resonated with me. Stephen's mission aligns perfectly with Guardian's values, and we're thrilled to have him on board.”

Josh Scott, CEO of Guardian Recovery

"I chose to work with Guardian because there is a tremendous need for mental health and substance use disorder treatment," said Stephen Hill. "This partnership allows me to ensure that individuals and families receive the comprehensive care and support they deserve—just like my family and I did."

In his role, Hill will focus on building connections with schools, community organizations, and families to provide critical resources for prevention, early intervention, and treatment. By leveraging his extensive network, Hill aims to establish a trusted support system that professionals can rely on when someone in their school or community requires help.

"My mission is to help people in crisis and connect them to the resources and programs they need," Hill explained. "Through prevention and outreach, I hope to ensure families are supported long before they face the hardships of addiction and mental health struggles."

Guardian Recovery CEO Josh Scott expressed enthusiasm for the collaboration, reflecting on Hill's impactful advocacy. "The first time I met Stephen, I had the privilege of hearing him speak to parents at my son's high school. His sincerity and dedication to helping students and families deeply resonated with me. Stephen's mission aligns perfectly with Guardian's values, and we're thrilled to have him on board."

For nearly a decade, Hill has shared his recovery journey through Speak Sobriety, inspiring students nationwide to make healthy choices and seek help when needed. As a mentor and recovery coach, Hill has also worked closely with young people navigating mental health and addiction challenges.

"My hope is to transform this partnership into a long-term collaboration covering the entire continuum of care—from prevention to early intervention, treatment, and recovery," Hill said. "With Guardian's support, I aim to reach as many young people and families as possible, empowering them with the knowledge to prevent these hardships."
