

Timothée Chalamet Holds Court at 'A Complete Unknown' Nashville Premiere

The Golden Globe nominated actor graced the Belcourt Theatre screening before celebrating the Bob Dylan biopic at a reception at AB Hillsboro Village.

December 24, 2024 /

EINPresswire.com/ -- Just days before nabbing a trio of Golden Globe nominations, the Bob Dylan biopic "A Complete Unknown" had its surprise premiere in Nashville, featuring star Timothée Chalamet.

Bringing the Searchlight Pictures film to the city that Bob Dylan himself embraced on late '60s albums like "Nashville Skyline," Chalamet's whirlwind day in Music City on Dec. 6 included a Q&A with Michael Gray, VP Museum Services at the Country Music Hall of Fame.

Next, Chalamet gave a special introduction at the film's premiere, held at the historic Belcourt Theatre — once home to the Grand Ole Opry, located across the street from AB Hillsboro Village (Anzie Blue).

The evening culminated at AB Hillsboro Village, Nashville's only woman-owned music venue. There, a capacity, standing-room-only crowd rubbed shoulders with the celebrated actor during "A Complete Unknown's" post-screening reception.

"Nashville is a big, small town, and it really showed up for Timothée Chalet and 'A Complete Unknown,'" said AB Hillsboro Village co-owner Marcie Allen Van Mol, who arranged the premiere.

"A Complete Unknown" is now nominated for three Golden Globes: Best Motion Picture - Drama; Best Performance by a Male Actor - Drama (Timothée Chalamet); and Best Performance by a Male Actor in a Supporting Role (Edward Norton). The film opens in theaters nationwide on Christmas Day. The Golden Globes will be awarded on Sunday, January 5.
