The Award of Distinction distinguishes hospices that excel in one of the most meaningful measures of care – the voice of the caregiver. Feedback from families and loved ones guided this recognition, affirming Minnesota Hospice's commitment to supporting not only patients but those closest to them during difficult times.

“Hospice care is as much about supporting families as it is about caring for patients,” said Ken Haglind, founding CEO of Minnesota Hospice. “To be honored as a top 25% hospice in the nation based on the experiences of those we serve is deeply meaningful. It speaks to the heart of who we are as an organization – one that leads with empathy, compassion, and dedication to quality at every level.”

WellSky, a national leader in health and community care technology, conducted their annual analysis of hospices using their CAHPS (Consumer Assessment of Healthcare Providers and Systems) platform over the past year. Minnesota Hospice's exceptional performance in Overall Satisfaction and Likelihood to Recommend categories solidified its position again as a national leader in hospice care.

Haglund added, "Being recognized with this award of distinction strengthens our community commitment to exceeding the standard for hospice care in our region. Every member of our team plays a role in creating a space where patients and their families feel heard, supported, and cared for at the highest level."

The recognition reaffirms Minnesota Hospice's standing as not only a Medicare 5-star rated provider – one of only four hospices designation in the entire state of Minnesota, but also as a community provider of excellence in end-of-life care.

Minnesota Hospice extends its deepest gratitude to its staff, leadership, and families for their trust and partnership. As the organization continues to grow, this honor reinforces the values that have defined its care from the very beginning.
