Daimien has the hope that the updated version will help all property investors to have the confidence to aggressively pursue investing in property. Arguably there is no safer form of investment.

Daimien Patterson is principal of Integrity Property Investment and recognised as a property mentor on generating wealth through property to hundreds of property investors across Australia. Integrity Property Investment was created by Daimien, a self-confessed property investment die-hard and active investor himself, because he became fed up with the almost complete lack of trustworthy property investment firms that represented the interests of their clients instead of property developers.

According to Integrity Property Investment, what is crucial to grasp at this moment, is there are many property markets across Australia and prices are naturally going to fluctuate at different times. Property prices are linked to supply and demand and will naturally fluctuate and correct over time. This is why property investing is a long-haul game and investors should hold onto their properties as they go through many of these fluctuation cycles.
