Jimmy Carter, who passed away on December 29 at the age of 100, left an memorable mark on the world through his humanitarian work. Alongside his wife, Rosalynn, he dedicated nearly four decades to Habitat for Humanity, helping build and repair nearly 4,500 homes across 14 countries and engaging more than 100,000 volunteers in the process.

"We are inspired by President Carter's belief that access to safe, affordable housing is a cornerstone of a thriving society," said Nathan Kadisha, a Principal at Alpine LA Properties. "At K3 Holdings and Alpine LA, our mission goes beyond managing properties. We are dedicated to creating supportive environments where residents feel secure, valued, and empowered to succeed."

Leaders from both organizations echoed the call for policymakers to honor Carter's legacy by prioritizing investments in housing infrastructure and addressing the nationwide shortage of deeply affordable rental units. Such measures are vital to combating homelessness and poverty, challenges that persist in urban centers and beyond.

"As stewards of housing in our communities, we understand that providing shelter is only the first step," Michael Kadisha added. "It's about creating a sense of place and belonging. We are committed to enhancing the lives of our tenants through resident-focused programs, partnerships with local organizations, and a holistic approach to property management that prioritizes dignity and opportunity."

K3 Holdings and Alpine LA Properties are also known for their proactive initiatives that foster community spirit. From organizing neighborhood beautification projects to collaborating with charities that address homelessness, their leadership demonstrates a dedication to Carter's philosophy of collaborative action and service.
