"The fact that we now have a double-digit number of franchisees proves that our model works," said Max Emma, founder and CEO of BooXkeeping. "It gives new franchisees confidence that we're here to stay, support them and help them succeed."

Strategic partnerships with brands like Woof Gang Bakery, iTan and 3Natives played a key role in the company's growth by providing franchisees with a reliable pipeline of potential clients through BooXkeeping's enterprise program.

"In 2024, these partnerships not only strengthened our network but also showcased our ability to provide tailored bookkeeping solutions that meet the unique needs of a diverse client base," said Emma. "Franchisees benefit greatly from being part of a system that is already trusted by so many established brands."

BooXkeeping also introduced several operational advancements in 2024, including an accounting school for new franchisees, proprietary executive coaching and enhanced automation. These improvements streamlined processes and bolstered franchisee success.

"We are actively working on improving and optimizing our processes with AI," said Emma.

“BooXkeeping has developed its own proprietary tools that streamline operations, making processes easier for franchisees. We are also continuously enhancing and training our AI bot to further improve its capabilities.”

Looking ahead, BooXkeeping is focusing on growth in key markets, including Arizona, California, Texas and Massachusetts. These areas have shown strong demand for bookkeeping services, creating opportunities for new franchise owners.

“Demand for professional bookkeeping continues to grow across these underserved markets,” Emma said. “We’re confident that expanding into these regions will further establish BooXkeeping as the go-to provider for both businesses and franchisees alike. Our top priority for 2025 is to continue providing excellent support for our franchisees and to grow our franchise network to 50 locations.”
