Balfour Capital Group to Host Exclusive
Investor Summit in Monaco

Monaco – February 20, 2025 – Balfour Capital Group is pleased to announce its upcoming Investor Summit, set to take place at the prestigious Le Méridien Beach Plaza in Monaco on February 20, 2025. This exclusive, invitation-only event will bring together investors, clients, and advisors to explore the latest developments in global markets and economic trends.

The summit will feature a comprehensive analysis of the first 30 days of the new U.S. presidential administration, highlighting policies introduced under President Donald Trump and their global implications. Discussions will cover key geopolitical and economic impacts across Europe, Asia, the Middle East, and beyond. Attendees will gain actionable insights into economic strategies and investment opportunities shaped by these shifts.

Leading the conference will be Steven Alain Lawrence, Chief Investment Officer of Balfour Capital Group. Joining him are Johan Boos, Division Head of Europe; Matias Oscar Pejko, Division Head of Latin America and Spain; and Marcel Dufol, IT Specialist of Balfour Capital Group. Together, they will provide expert analysis on global economic developments and their impact on diverse markets.

"We are excited to host this important event, offering our investors and partners an in-depth look at the forces shaping the global economy," said Steven Alain Lawrence. "With the dynamic changes in U.S. leadership and rising interest rates, we aim to provide strategic insights that help our clients navigate today's complex financial landscape."

The summit's agenda will address a wide range of critical topics, including:

Geopolitical Risks and Opportunities: Exploring the implications of President Trump's policies on international trade, diplomacy, and economic alliances.

Interest Rate Movements: Examining the impact of rising rates on global financial markets, borrowing costs, and investment strategies.

Energy Sector Developments: Analyzing the evolving dynamics in the energy sector, including the shift toward renewables and the effects of U.S. energy policies.

Technology and Innovation: Highlighting advancements in artificial intelligence (AI) and their transformative influence on global markets, including the rise of "the machines" in quantitative applications and the evaluation of risk versus reward.

Emerging Market Trends: Identifying growth opportunities and challenges in key emerging economies.

Participants will have the opportunity to engage in meaningful discussions and network with industry leaders and peers in an intimate and dynamic setting.
