· □□□□□□□□ □□□□□□□□□□□□ □□□□□□□□: ANY.RUN added Linux-based malware analysis with real-time monitoring and detailed reporting. The free Community plan now includes Windows 10 (x64) and Linux VMs, allowing users to deal with complex malware and phishing attacks with ease.

· □□□□□□□□ □□□□□□ □□□□□□□□□□□□ □□□□□□: Threat Intelligence Lookup (TI Lookup) provides a centralized IOC repository with YARA, Mutex, and Suricata searches. “Malconf” IOCs add deeper context for advanced threats, while notifications and a redesigned home screen with an interactive MITRE ATT&CK matrix help researchers track emerging attacks.

· □□□□□□□□□□: Improved Team Collaboration features multi-admin support, Single Sign-On (SSO) enhancements, and the option to export team analysis history in JSON format, ensuring more efficient management and oversight for organizations of all sizes.

· □□□□□□□□□□: The Security Training Lab provides universities with a hands-on curriculum integrated directly with ANY.RUN's sandbox, helping students build practical cybersecurity skills and preparing them to tackle real-world threats upon graduation.

· Safebrowsing offers a secure browser environment for investigating suspicious URLs without endangering local systems. Additionally, the ANY.RUN Browser Extension lets analysts quickly launch sandbox sessions from any Chromium-based browser, saving time and streamlining investigations.
