Moreover, due to the outbreak of the COVID-19 pandemic, manufacturers have increased social media advertisement of consuming tequila products to reach a large consumer base. However, implementation of lockdown and curfew practices globally are affecting the domestic as well as international production of tequila products, which, in turn, hampers the growth of the overall market. Thus, the outbreak of COVID-19 has negatively impacted the tequila industry in 2020, as sales of companies have reduced and operations have been halted.

The global tequila market is segmented into product type, price range, distribution channel, and region. On the basis of product type, the tequila market is segregated into tequila blanco, tequila reposado, tequila anejo and tequila joven. The Tequila Blanco segment accounted for a major tequila market share in 2021 and is expected to grow at a significant CAGR during the tequila market forecast. Blanco tequilas is used for mixing into cocktails due to its crisp, bright, and unadorned expression of agave.

By price range, the global market is segmented into premium and economic. The economic segment accounted for a major share in the global market in 2021 and it is expected to grow at a significant CAGR during the forecasted period. Economic priced tequila may not have pure 100% blue agave but it is still in demand due to its easy availability.
