

SGS Presents Portfolio to Protect Human and Ecosystem Health

GENEVA, SWITZERLAND, January 14, 2025 /EINPresswire.com/ -- SGS harnesses decades of world-leading testing, inspection and certification (TIC) experience and sustainability leadership to launch Nature services under its new IMPACT NOW for sustainability suite.

Protecting nature has countless benefits, from conserving biodiversity and securing food and water resources to preventing disease and building resilience against climate change.

As a trusted sustainability partner, SGS presents its all-encompassing IMPACT NOW Nature services, designed to support organizations' preservation efforts, from improving farming and fishing to eliminating waste and transitioning to net zero. The new pillar focuses on managing environmental risk and combating forever chemicals, and includes:

Environmental testing and assessment:

- Soil, air and water testing
- Environmental DNA (E-DNA) testing and monitoring
- Environmental due diligence and impact assessments

Forestry supply chain traceability and assurance:

- EU Deforestation Regulation (EUDR) compliance
- Programme for the Endorsement of Forest Certification (PEFC) and Forest Stewardship Council (FSC) certification

Combatting forever chemicals:

- Per- and polyfluoroalkyl substances (PFAS)
