Dalton Stripling

“We're real proud to bring together some of the biggest names in country and rock for our 37th Chilifest,” said Dalton Stripling, President of Chilifest. “But we're more than just a music festival—this is a long-standing tradition of fun, fellowship, and fundraising that invests right back into our local community. Each ticket and every sponsor's support goes straight into helping those in need throughout the Brazos Valley.”

Since day one, Chilifest has raised over $4 million for local charities and nonprofits, making it a true Brazos Valley charity event. A dedicated group of college students runs the entire show, pouring their hearts into combining live music and philanthropy.

“Giving back is what Chilifest is all about,” Stripling added. “We invite local charities to get in on the fun, and we're excited to grow that impact year after year.”

Throughout the years, Chilifest has benefited organizations like Big Brothers Big Sisters, Brazos Valley Children's Museum, Down Syndrome Association of Brazos Valley, Voices For Children, Kiwanis Club of College Station, and many others.

Every spring, Chilifest transforms 15 acres of pastureland in Snook, Texas, into a hoppin' festival ground, packed with great music, a chili cook-off, and that signature Texas party atmosphere.
