"Ms. Gullo did a fantastic job with all of my children. She was able to spend time gaining their trust and getting to know them before they started opening up to her, but each one did so in their way. With her understanding of their different ages and personalities, she was resourceful in using different tools and techniques to approach their care in a way that was both creative and effective. My children are great communicators, making our home life much more peaceful and understanding."

"As someone under a lot of stress (aren't we all?), I always put off going to counseling because I felt like things would eventually settle themselves. But, after going through a major life transition, multiple things boiled up, and I didn't want my emotional health to affect my family or work life, so I found Cindy's website and felt like she would be the most relatable person to talk to. She is! I like Cindy's office because it's like talking to a best friend with good advice. She has helped me stress less, set a realistic mindset, and increase my self-confidence personally and professionally. I recommend her!" "I refer to Cindy when someone is looking for a therapist. Her authenticity, relatability, and sense of humor make sessions feel like you're talking to a friend. I appreciate Cindy for always being open to receiving my feedback and addressing my concerns." "Cindy is an amazing. My daughter has been going through a tough time, and Cindy counseled her on what to do and spoke with me about how to help her. My daughter now handles stressful situations much better with the tools that Cindy has given her. Cindy listens and truly cares. I highly recommend her!"
